I am delighted to welcome you to the 2018 Festival of Creativity at the University of Lincoln.

Building on the success of last year, this year’s Festival is even bigger and better. The College of Arts develops talented students working across many different disciplines and we all take great pride in showcasing their impressive work.

The Festival celebrates our students’ creativity through shows, exhibitions and performances, and the one-off events locate this within a wider debate about the importance of the Arts in contemporary Society.

I hope you will find it inspiring, delightful, but above all, provocative and challenging!

Professor Matthew Cragoe
Pro Vice Chancellor
Head of College of Arts
This year we have showcases from more than twenty programmes across the College of Arts. Working collaboratively, staff and students have curated inspiring and impressive displays, performances and exhibitions across a wide range of disciplines that celebrate the students' considerable talents and achievements.

CREATIVITY IS...
As part of the Festival of Creativity, we will be hosting a series of talks, debates and discussions to further explore the different aspects of creativity, support interdisciplinarity and encourage collaboration. By engaging with these events and exploring the different creative methodologies of those who practice beyond our usual disciplines, we can enhance our own understanding of what it means to be creative.

Lincolnshire Young Designer of the Year

The Lincoln School of Design is showcasing emerging talent from across Lincolnshire at its inaugural hosting of the Lincolnshire Young Designer of the Year 2018.

The competition celebrates the creativity and innovation of students from Lincolnshire secondary schools and aims to profile and promote young people across the Design & Technology subjects from Key Stage 3 and above.

The display of the best projects will feature a range of disciplines from the competition’s GCSE and Sixth Form category winners and the overall Lincolnshire Young Designer of the Year will be announced at a special awards evening on the 25th May.

JELLY: Street Fashion

In 2014 designers Dave Bramston and Ye Li conducted a series of community print workshops at the National Centre for Craft & Design. Over the next 3 years the project continued to develop and involve other designers in China and the UK.

In 2016 Dave and South Korean designer Mi Young Jang conducted street fashion workshops in Guangzhou China and Lincoln using a range of found objects including car doors, old fencing and broken ironing boards. The designers worked with many communities to create prints that were subsequently made into a fashion collection – printed and made predominantly on the streets of Guangzhou and Lincoln.

The Jelly title for the exhibition is a reference to the Liu village community in Guangzhou where the street fashion project was initially conducted, following the 2014 exhibition at the NCCD, and prior to its arrival in Lincoln.

The exhibition includes a series of free print workshops.

Cultivating Creativity

Prepare to be inspired!

Colleagues from across the College of Arts will share their passionate teaching ideas in this quick-fire session.

A wide range of approaches to cultivating creativity amongst HE students will be on show in a dynamic delivery of 5-minute talks.

The diversity of disciplines within the College of Arts will be showcased, including presentations from those who’ve had projects funded by the College’s Teaching and Learning Innovation Fund. There will be plenty of opportunity for questions and discussion.

Book your place now. This celebration of creative teaching and learning within the College of Arts will end with a cheese and wine reception.

On Being An Artist

The Contemporary Visual Arts Network East Midlands (CVAN EM) and the University of Lincoln are delighted to present this event packed full of opportunities to hear from and speak to visual artists and to find out more about ways and experiences of maintaining a contemporary visual arts practice.

In 2016 CVAN EM selected 6 artists, living and working in the East Midlands to take part in Document, a project that set out to tell their story, in their voice. Since then, CVAN EM has worked with those artists as they have reflected on their practice and captured their experiences.

Einstein said ‘We cannot solve our problems with the same thinking we used when we created them’.

Creative ideas and innovative solutions are key ingredients for business success. Businesses, no matter how large or small, who see & act upon the opportunities and possibilities for change, not only survive in our uncertain and complex world; they flourish.

This workshop looks at what gets in the way of innovative thinking. What blocks us from being as creative as we know we can, and must, be? And what can we do to remove those blocks?

A first in Lincolnshire - Mandy Wheeler and Luke Sorba, both award winning writers and directors with many years’ experience teaching and coaching creative professionals, bring their unique workshop to the University of Lincoln.

Delegates will return to their workplace with an improved insight into how to create new ideas, products and services that will bring greater success and renewed energy to their business.

Creative Impulses

An evening of performance poetry led by the OutSpoken Poets. OutSpoken Poets are the leading group of poets guiding the poetry scene in Lincoln.

Hosting a range of activities across the city, we endeavour to create events, and opportunities for both established and rising poets to share their words, and shout from the rooftops. We want everyone to be outspoken and every word to have a home. Audience participation enthusiastically encouraged.

Got something to say (poetically)? - get up and be OutSpoken! Entry is free but do bring some cash for some excellent coffee and cake.

Joy Sleeman
‘Picking up the trail, material traces and some incidents of exhibition histories’

In this talk Joy will explore some of her recent research exploring artists’ journeys through exhibitions that she has studied, written catalogue essays for, or curated. Key artists whose travels are discussed in the lecture are David Lamelas, Nancy Holt and Robert Smithson. These artists act as guides on a journey as well as the subjects of her presentation. Smithson’s exploration of the picturesque and an unfinished interview with Nancy Holt prompt us to rethink not only where, but also how, we travel.
History, Fiction and Augustine’s Confessions

Professor Kate Cooper is Head of History at Royal Holloway, University of London. Kate’s writing and teaching explore the world of the Mediterranean in the Roman period, with a special interest in daily life and the family, religion, gender and social identity, and the inter-connected problems of martyrdom, resistance movements, and religious violence. The New Statesman has called her Band of Angels: The Forgotten World of Early Christian Women (Atlantic Books) ‘the best kind of popular history’.

One of her current areas of interest is the interface between fiction and history, a topic she will explore in her talk in relation to Saint Augustine’s Confessions, one of the masterpieces of early Christian literature.

‘Postman Time’ is an innovative exhibition concept where time has been given instead of space and the theatre becomes the gallery.

This free show will feature distinctive and exciting creative acts that are seamlessly brought together into a performative exhibition. The curatorial premise builds upon the principles of the exhibition ‘Il Tempo del Postino’ at Manchester International Festival, 2007.

Expect the unexpected in this unique collaborative project by students on MA Choreography, Theatre and Fine Art courses at the University of Lincoln.

Free, but must be booked in advance via LPAC website.
